

Linux For Auditors On-line Class

May 10-11 2002
Setup Instructions

Welcome to the Linux For Auditors on-line training class. I am your instructor Jonathan Earl, and I can be reached via e-mail at Jonathan@Earl-Family.Net.

The class will be conducted via WebEx, and I will be sharing my screen and audio with you. Please confirm you can participate in a WebEx meeting by attending the WebEx testing meeting at: <https://www.webex.com/test-meeting.html>. Also please confirm you will be able to participate in the class via your computer microphone/speakers or a headset. WebEx also offers call in capability.

I will be using a web site to share code and data files with you, please confirm you can reach <http://www.jre-training.com/LinuxFundamentals/>.

We will be remotely connecting to a Linux Server hosted on the Amazon cloud. You will need to telnet into this server.

There are several tools available to start a telnet session:

You can download and run Putty. Putty is an open source Telnet client, and can be downloaded from: <https://www.putty.org/>. The standalone putty.exe file is listed under Alternative binary files.

If you have a Mac, a telnet app may already be installed, I suggest a Google search for details.

To test your connection to our Linux server, please open your telnet app and specify the following settings:

Host Name: 3.22.99.224
Connection Type: Telnet
Port: 23

Open this connection and login as:

User Id: student..A
Password: LinuxTrainingMay10

You will have a command line prompt. Enter date to run a Linux command displaying the current server data and time. Please enter exit to logoff the server.

This will be your unique login for our class. During our discussion about security I will ask you to change the original password to a new password of your choosing.

Here is the WebEx invite for our class:
